Edward Norton

With The Bourne Legacy about to hit theatres, Edward Norton's acting career only seems to be getting hotter. He commands an elite level of respect in the film industry, a strong box office draw, and consistent praise from the critics. And yet, despite his impressive resumé, Norton has yet to repeat the critical success of his early career. Could his 43rd birthday mark a turning point in which this unique actor is finally recognised as one of the best? The answer may lie in Norton's own spiritual and psychic energies.

Edward Harrison Norton was born into a privileged Boston family on 18th August, 1969. As a Western zodiac Leo and a Chinese zodiac Rooster, his place in the spotlight seemed assured from the beginning—especially with money and connections on his side. Leo is the classic sign of the stage, craving attention and thriving under pressure, while the Rooster is famous for its aggressive stance and king-of-the-hill mentality. These are often the kind of personalities that make it to the big screen—powerful, confident, emotional and driven to succeed.

Norton exhibited signs of maturity early in his career, suggesting that he would be able to transmute some of the negative, even narcissistic aspects of his intense Leo/Rooster combination. He began acting around the age of 12 at a Summer camp, and his talent quickly gained him the recognition of his peers. After receiving the programme's top acting award, Norton returned as a counselor and director of the theatre program. This kind of loyalty and desire to give back, a positive trait of the Lion (Leo), would come into play throughout his career.

“Fame is very corrosive and you have to guard very strictly against it.” —Ed Norton

Despite his growing passion for the stage, Norton did not have a one-track mind. He enrolled at Yale University—where he acted in collegiate productions alongside Paul Giamatti and Ron Livingston—and earned his degree in History. Upon graduation he moved to Japan and took a position with his grandfather's consulting business.

But the deep spiritual need to express himself in front of an audience, a trait shared by both Lion and Rooster, was too strong to be denied. Norton moved to New York City to pursue acting full-time, and when the Lion makes a decision, he does so wholeheartedly.

The breakthrough came quickly, when a young, unknown actor stunned casting directors for Primal Fear, a film that was on the verge of being scrapped. Norton's performance—his first ever film role—earned him an Academy Award nomination and made Primal Fear a success. Lightning struck again two years later, when Norton made his now-famous turn as a reformed neo-Nazi in American History X. This performance was almost universally praised by critics, and earned the young actor a second Academy Award nod in as many years. Two out of his first three film performances had gained him some of the highest recognition in the business.

With a meteoric career in the works, someone with Norton's psychic constitution runs the risk of becoming deeply self-absorbed. The Lion feeds off the spotlight, becoming brighter and brighter until it believes itself to be the center of the universe, while the Rooster uses anything it can to inflate its massive ego—and rudely pecks anyone who gets in the way.

It seems that Norton, however, was able to tap a different side of the same energy. By taking an early interest in philanthropy and humanitarian work, he shifted the focus away from himself, even as his acting career took him to new heights with films such as Rounders with Matt Damon and Fight Club with Brad Pitt. Norton became president of the American chapter of the Maasai Wilderness Conservation Trust, involved himself in various charities, and recently was named the United Nations Goodwill Ambassador for Biodiversity. This is a classic case of Leo and Rooster overcoming their self-obsessed tendencies and channeling their strength for the common good.

So why is it, with all this creative power and a string of box office hits, that Norton has not received any major award nominations in almost fifteen years? It may be that his reputation as an underground actor, and his keen awareness of his own narcissistic shadow, have psychically prevented him from getting involved with projects that will put statues on the mantle. This has worked to his advantage and sustained his image as an independent artist, but a deep need for recognition still lurks within Norton's psyche, and he will not rest until this need is met. Projects like The Bourne Legacy are unlikely to garner Norton any major awards, but it just may be the film that launches a new, more mature and fully powerful incarnation of his acting career.

Aries (Mar 21 - Apr 19)

Why so serious? This is not a question that others will be asking you this month, but rather a question you will be asking them. There is a lot of buoyancy in your stars, and a propensity to enjoy life to the fullest. Nothing wrong with that! Of course, not everyone will share your breezy outlook—but anybody willing to follow your example and look on the bright side will thank you for it. Considering other points of view may seem like a chore to you, but as long as you stay centered, you can relate to the down-and-out while staying on top of the world. Next time you're feeling serious, you'll be glad for the perspective.

Taurus (Apr 20 - May 20)

If you want to accomplish something big, start by doing little things consistently. This has been said over and over throughout history, and for good reason! The beauty of this is that there are plenty of things you can do—at home, at the gym, even at work—to bring you closer to the goal. Whatever suits the new you, the higher you reach out and grab it. Love is oddly the same way. A proactive effort pays off, whether you are pursuing someone new or looking for ways to strengthen a partnership. Someone in your circle is not who they seem to be. Look carefully and you'll be surprised at what you see.

Gemini (May 21 - June 21)

Your Leo friends may not like it, but they'll have to share the spotlight with you this month. There is just too much energy in your stars for you to be a background dancer. The question is, what kind of performance will you turn in? Will it be a love story? It's a distinct possibility, especially if you are actively seeking romance. Will it be a career saga? Much less likely, as your ideas right now are larger than your attention span. One thing's for sure: Being the centre of attention can take you to some exciting places if you are up to the challenge. You don't want to wonder what could have been, do you?

Libra (Sept 23 - Oct 22)

Your recent tension with a friend is the result of something unsaid between the two of you, but in order to have the best chance at a smooth resolution, it's best to wait until after the 7th. Channels of communication will be much clearer then. A structured and disciplined approach is auspicious in your world right now, giving you greater confidence and a stronger self-image. Being scattered is one way to keep your options open, but it's possible to be flexible and organized at the same time. This is when your power as a Libra can truly shine. If you're looking for love, dropping a bad habit will bring it within reach.

Scorpio (Oct 23 - Nov 21)

Silent communication is a skill, and you are one of the best in the business. The problem is, not everybody understands this language as well as you do. Some people need words, when to you the situation is painfully obvious—and sometimes its best to humour them. Do your best to talk through it, even if you don't want to. Your relationships are linked together in unusual ways, and extending yourself will pay big dividends. After the 23rd, you'll find it much easier to reveal your emotions. A love connection is psychically charged—don't be surprised if things get serious right out of the gate.

Sagittarius (Nov 22 - Dec 21)

There's no telling how far your creative energy could take you this month, provided you keep those close personal friendships where you can see them. It will be easy enough to lose yourself in the latest project or obsession, and let someone important fall by the wayside—but as long as you are aware of this pitfall, you will easily avoid it! Love is a many splendoured thing, and you can see just how many connections and possibilities exist when you open your eyes to them. However, Sagittarius doesn't want just any joker hanging around. The right person has to have a serious side.

Cancer (June 22 - July 22)

When something from your past resurfaces, the temptation will be to overreact. A far better approach is to consult your intuition and ask yourself, on a deep level, what it means. Once you realize that you can learn from the situation, you might even be grateful for it! Things at home have been a little out of sorts, and this is affecting other aspects of your life. Since the outer world is a reflection of the inner, a little tidying up works wonders. Hold off on signing anything important until the 8th. After the 23rd, provided you've done your homework, the universe has some fun things in store for you.

Leo (July 23 - Aug 22)

If you aren't convinced of the power of synchronicity, perhaps you will be after this month. Your social encounters are like signals traveling along the circuits of a computer system, electrifying various aspects of your inner and outer life. One thing always leads to another, and small doors have a way of opening to big things. The trick will be taking a genuine interest in the people you meet, especially while the sun is moving through your sign and making you the centre of attention. But the more you balance your focus between yourself and others, the more you relax into a feeling of greater trust in the cosmos.

Virgo (Aug 23 - Sep 22)

This is a good time to put those humanitarian instincts into action. It could be volunteering, giving to charity or even just listening to a friend, but selfless service is a huge asset in your world right now. The benefits are not always obvious, but in terms of karma, a rising tide raises all ships. Your birthday is just around the corner, and as the Sun prepares to enter your sign, it is your inner self that needs pampering first. What better way than to score some healthy karmic points? Once you've done this, that birthday spa treatment or shopping spree will be all the more exciting, knowing that the universe is truly a system of give and take.

“The more you balance the focus between yourself and others, the more you can relax and trust the cosmos.”

Capricorn (Dec 22 - Jan 19)

You have always been driven to succeed, but this is a special opportunity to get ahead in your projects, whether at work or on your own. Things will fall into place and allow you to accomplish more than usual, provided you take good care of your body. In the world of romance, it is your emotional honesty that will shake things up and attract someone new, or cause an existing partner to see you in a whole new light. Without that refreshing dose of honesty, it will be business as usual, and now is not the time for that! First, though, you will have to be completely honest with yourself.

Aquarius (Jan 20 - Feb 18)

Get ready for surge of creative energy. You can't put it in the bank, and it looks like there are two places for it to go at the moment. One is into your relationships, particularly a love interest. This in itself can be a creative endeavour, something shaped and sculpted to its unique perfection. The other is into a project that gets you going, whether redecorating the home or painting on canvas. The point is that you need pleasure this month—healthy, honest-to-goodness pleasure that makes you forget about the time. You also need to be appreciated, and with the distance you've covered so far this year, you deserve it.

Pisces (Feb 19 - Mar 20)

Taking your relationships to the next level—whether romantic or friendly—involves opening up about your past. In the end, this allows you to be more authentic. The personality you have tried to project at certain times (don't worry, we all do it) is actually far less interesting than the real, whole you! Your friends and/or partner will recognise this immediately, and be drawn to the space and clarity opening up in you. Why hide it? Just don't let yourself be pulled too easily into someone else's psychic world—this is a sensitive time, and while you are experiencing powerful inner change, it's important to stay centred.

Making Good Karma

What is Karma?

The real meaning of karma is not punishment and reward, but the path of responsibility. On this path, each of us takes responsibility for our own actions. It's not about whether we are right or wrong, but more about learning. If we learn from our experiences, the consequences invariably become good.

Karma is all about cause and effect. Our thoughts and actions have consequences—some of them are even powerful enough to follow us into future lives. We are constantly creating karma, so we need to be mindful of living with the best of intentions.

Know it when you see it

Virtually any problem can be transformed by the realisation that karma is bringing us an important lesson. Suddenly, we aren't victims anymore. Instead, we are responsible for learning from our problems and working to resolve them.

Things like astrology and past life regression can be powerful tools for understanding and resolving personal karma. The most important tool of all, however, is taking responsibility for our own actions.

Learn the Lessons

We create good karma by seeing the bigger picture. When we believe the best in others, think positive thoughts, speak kind words, and perform good deeds, good karma comes. On the other hand, negative thoughts about our colleagues, neighbours, family or friends can result in bad karma. The essence of bad karma is having to repeat the same thing over and over until we learn.

If we are stuck in abusive or destructive relationship, we may not only be receiving karma but also creating it. This is why it is so important to recognise negative and destructive elements in our lives, and do our best to resolve them.

When we finally understand a karmic lesson, something amazing takes place: We are liberated from negative patterns of behaviour.

Find Forgiveness

Forgiveness is a huge step in creating good karma. Many generations of families have been destroyed from the bad karma that continues to repeat itself in the form of abuse. It only takes one generation to forgive and the cycle is broken. Refusing forgiveness only repeats the cycle and establishes unconscious patterns of behaviour that can last for many years.

6 Reasons why you are Single

#1 Negative Vibes

You may be putting off potential mates—not because of your appearance or personality—but because you are emanating negative psychic energies. Desperation and neediness can scare off people who might otherwise be into you, because they sense that your spiritual self is out of balance. Many people avoid going out with partners who are giving out such negative energy, because they subconsciously feel it may become a drain on their own spiritual and mental wellbeing. Nurture the positive side of your spirit and you will instantly make yourself a more attractive catch.

#2 Subconscious sabotage

If you're carrying a lot of mental baggage from past relationships, your childhood or other events in your life, it may be interfering with your ability to enter a worthwhile relationship today. For example, if you have a strong belief that you are unattractive or unlovable, this will prevent you from being confident enough to approach people. Tackle these psychic obstacles and you may find that getting into a relationship becomes easier.

#3 Narcissism

Self-love is important, but if you place all the focus on yourself, you'll find it difficult to forge a connection with someone else based on mutual love, respect, and realistic expectations. By shifting more focus to others in your life—family, friends, even people you haven't talked to in awhile—you will attract the kind of energy into your life that blossoms into love.

#4 Expectations

Following on from #3, if your expectations of your 'perfect partner' are too rigid and high-minded, you may be putting up roadblocks which prevent people from reaching your heart and soul. If this is the case then it may help to cast off, or at least suspend, your preconceptions of what a partner should be like. People are unique and imperfect. Take a chance on the unexpected. You may find that ultimately, your dream partner turns out to be better than anything you imagined.

#5 Trapped in the past

Whether it was a good relationship or a harmful and abusive one, your past loves can hold you back if you let them. If heart and spirit are still invested in a relationship that ended, you can't fully embrace the new realities and loves that await you in your life. To be receptive to the spiritual and loving energies of others, you must cut ties to relationships that have ended.

#6 Destiny awaits

You may be single simply because you have yet to meet the person you are destined to be with. The ways of the universe are mysterious, and will reveal themselves in good time. An astrological or psychic reading may help you to determine the kind of person you should be on the look-out for. They may also provide some clues and insight about where you should be looking.

WHAT MAKES A GOOD READING?

A good psychic reading has several elements. First, the psychic can validate something about the client—something that could not possibly have been known by ordinary means. Another is honesty. The reader must be honest and avoid telling the person what they want to hear unless it is true, but the reading should always bring a sense of optimism and hope for the future. I do believe every cloud has a silver lining, even in our darkest moments. Having a psychic that can identify your own personal silver lining can be invaluable. I always expect my clients to feel more positive and empowered after a reading with me.

WHEN DID YOU FIRST REALISE YOU WERE PSYCHIC?

I have always had a connection to the psychic world, even as a child. I first realised that I could pick up on things intuitively when people would start to tell a story and I would know the outcome before they told me. I thought that everybody could do this until I later realised that it was a gift. I always had a strong intuition which I have developed over the years.

TELL US ABOUT A MEMORABLE EXPERIENCE WITH A CLIENT.

I have had great experiences with several clients. The most rewarding is when somebody speaks to you for the first time and you can sense they are sceptical. Then you tell them something which has blown them away and they become an open book as they let their barriers down. At this point I can give them so much more in their reading. One particular lady has now become a dear friend of mine. She was a sceptic in the beginning—until I described her personality, the people around her, descriptions of her looks, and even the type of dog she had! We still speak regularly and I'm honoured she placed her trust in me.
