Daniel Craig

Craig was born on 2nd March 1968 under the water sign of Pisces, and in the Chinese year of the Monkey. To be specific, his Chinese sign is that of the Earth Monkey, setting up a polar configuration of water and earth.

Daniel Craig took to acting very early on in his life, appearing in school plays from the age of six and later joining the National Youth Theatre and studying at the Guildhall school of Music and Drama. This course in life brought him to acting on television and then film, eventually reaching superstardom as the world's best-loved spy in the films Casino Royale and Quantum of Solace.

“I know there’s stuff that will come back because I haven’t dealt with it.”

Many film critics have commented that Craig fits effortlessly into the role of James Bond, and a look at his Chinese astrological sign sheds light on his suitability for the role. Just like Ian Fleming’s superspy character, Monkeys are fiercely intelligent, charming and quick thinkers. On the negative side however, when they need to be they can be particularly crafty and dishonest, and are sometimes known for their self-centred narcissism.

Such qualities appear tailor-made for the Bond character, and are certainly apparent in Craig’s unique portrayal of a maverick spy who walks a thin line between good and evil. They may also explain the actor’s meteoric rise to the much-prized role. Monkeys have an immensely strong sense of self-belief - a vital trait for succeeding in the film industry - and they are also known for their love of a good challenge.

As an Earth Monkey, Craig may be prone to periods of sullenness, but such individuals are also known for their good-natured ways. They are highly methodical in their approach to everything they do, and very dependable - two qualities that are highly sought-after by directors.

As a Pisces meanwhile, the actor may in fact have been prone to shyness as a child, a characteristic that Pisceans often disguise by emulating the personalities of others. If this is the case, then an affinity for acting seems only natural for the young Craig.

His best known on-screen persona is famous for his success with the ladies, and Craig appears to be every bit as successful in real life, recently marrying renowned beauty and actress Rachel Weisz. But like Bond, his love-life has been anything but straightforward. The actor’s first marriage in the early ‘90s lasted for just two years, while in the intervening years he suffered the break-up of two long-term relationships.

Pisces men are often highly romantic, and highly successful in wooing the opposite sex. They are also known for being very sensitive to their partner’s needs. But such men can also be incredibly idealistic, holding an unattainable image of perfection in their heads that their real love lives and partners cannot live up to. If Craig meets a woman who can show him the same sensitivity and demonstrate an understanding and tolerance for his high-minded ways, then the two can have a long-lasting and mutually beneficial relationship.

As with Bond, Craig’s astrological makeup consists of many opposites. Such polarisation may make him unpredictable at times, but they may also complement each other in a way that generates boundless energy, creativity, and a hunger for success. And at the moment things look particularly good for the actor, with his recent marriage and a reprise as James bond in next year’s as yet untitled sequel.

Aries (Mar 21 - Apr 19)

Someone close seems distant, but don't take it hard. They're going through changes, and you've been putting your energies to good use. Extend a cheerful helping hand, but don't get pulled into something that they ultimately have to work through on their own. Material objects can bring emotional comfort or distress: Let go of something you've been keeping around, something that symbolises the past. Replace it with something that represents and inspires who you are now, and notice the difference in how it makes you feel. Then, after Venus enters your sign on the 8th, an admirer will notice that something is different.

Taurus (Apr 20 - May 20)

You've been true to your plans and things are on schedule, but something is missing. Take a closer look at what you've built around you - not with the rational mind, but with your emotional antenna. The change you need to make is easy, and you'll wonder how you didn't see it before. Looking for love? You're likely to find it somewhere breezy and fun, and when you do, the flame will be hot. There's nothing wrong with extravagance, so long as you remember gratitude while you're living it up. If you're involved with someone, watch those flirtatious impulses at social gatherings. Otherwise the ride home could be awfully long and quiet.

Gemini (May 21 - June 21)

You're often the life of the party, but the taste for lighthearted play seems to be on vacation. "Fun for the sake of fun" will always have a place, but right now you need something between work and play; something fun that serves a purpose. There are plenty of great causes in need of time and talent, and don't worry - you won't be left out of the bargain. A partner or love interest is quietly sorting themselves out, and you'll be their hero if you can stand aside and offer subtle support. If it's new love you're after, consider attending a spiritual retreat - if not to find someone, then to make peace with yourself as a preliminary measure.

Neptune enters Pisces on the 3rd, heralding an energetic shift toward greater collective sensitivity. Meanwhile Saturn turns retrograde, helping us process the past.

Call 0800 422 0422 for more details

Libra (Sept 23 - Oct 22)

As Saturn turns retrograde in your sign, it's time to tune your moral compass - not to any outside system, but to the inner guide of spiritual growth. You'll find yourself evaluating defense mechanisms, work ethic, and your sense of outside authority. Are you really in the driver's seat, and if so, how has your driving been lately? These may be tough questions, but the stars have designed them to free you up. Saturn will hold your good patterns in place, and pull against patterns of self-sabotage. A relationship may be stressed by all this action, but it comes out stronger in the end.

Scorpio (Oct 23 - Nov 21)

There is definite tension between your leisurely impulses and the imperatives you have chosen. These two sides will have it out this month, and neither will be denied. It's just a question of balance, and if you're in a relationship, your partner is the perfect fulcrum between these two energies. This well-placed angel will put slightly more emphasis on hard work, but will help reward you when the job is done. If you're unattached and find yourself looking for love, a potential fling will certainly appear, but be careful - if you take the bait, you'll consider blowing off something important to indulge a fleeting fancy.

Sagittarius (Nov 22 - Dec 21)

Working on yourself, spiritually or physically, is easier when you work on your surroundings too. This builds momentum and reminds you of positive change. What in your home no longer reflects who you are now? Have you neglected what's close in pursuit of what's far away? You've been known to do just that, but if you aim high in all respects, you're bound to go farther. A potential love interest, for example, will delight in your domestic efforts. In matters of career, your chart is full of get-up-and-go. But the people close to you need every bit as much of your attention. Relationships, it's worth remembering, are important keys to your dreams.

Cancer (June 22 - July 22)

Your increased interest in all things hidden and psychic is no accident. Don't keep it to yourself.

Clubs, social groups, and places of higher learning are healthy ways to explore your curiosity, and to find tools for managing your own psychic sensitivity. With respect to love, you and your partner have work to do, especially after Saturn turns retrograde on the 7th. Take a good look at the pros and cons of what you've created together, and don't give in to distraction until you've figured things out. If you're single and looking, take a chance and be direct. It may not be your normal approach, but this is precisely why it promises a different result.

Leo (July 23 - Aug 22)

As Neptune changes signs, a close relationship comes into focus, and the deeper meaning of the connection is revealed. The full moon lights up your sign on the 7th, and when this happens you are difficult to resist. Lucky you - if you're on the prowl. But if you're already with someone, be careful, especially if your partner is a sensitive water sign. You may feel like the king of the jungle, but wandering eyes will put you in the dog house. Your powers of expression are under review as Saturn turns retro. All you have to do is watch, and you'll see where your style works against you. Tuning it up will then come easy.

Virgo (Aug 23 - Sep 22)

Keep those resolutions directly in your sights - this is a big year, and following through on healthy changes pays double. Speaking of money, there are two things to consider. First, there is an unnecessary expense somewhere that can be cut. Second, tightening your belt too much has left you feeling constricted. Plug the leak and use the balance for a healthy splurge. Send a message to your subconscious that there is indeed plenty to go around. The calculator may not be going anywhere, but you can lighten the energy by having faith. Mars is retrograde all month in your sign, so things cannot be forced. Better to be an open channel.

Skepticism is healthy and grounding up to a point, but taken too far it slows the expansion of mind and spirit.

Capricorn (Dec 22 - Jan 19)

As your ruling planet Saturn turns retrograde on the 7th, it's time to step back from everything you've been working so hard on, and ask whether your heart is really in it. It may well be, and that's fantastic - but if your approach has been flat and less than spirited, now is the time to embolden yourself and alter course. You've been standing too close to the situation to see it clearly. Clear the decks by seeking comforts, taking walks, and allowing yourself more down time than usual. A new romance is nothing serious - not yet. Whether there is something more depends on how this person helps you navigate the changes at hand.

Aquarius (Jan 20 - Feb 18)

Skepticism is healthy and grounding up to a point, but taken too far, it slows the expansion of mind and spirit. This is what Saturn retrograde is asking you to understand. Try believing something before you see it, and see where it leads you. In relationships, you want someone independent and outgoing - which is exactly how you're feeling now. A quiet and clingy partner will drive you up the wall, and you can only be honest and direct in letting them know. Your recent or upcoming birthday is an opportunity to visualise a new you, and the new moon in your sign helps you to make that vision real.

Pisces (Feb 19 - Mar 20)

As Neptune enters your sign, you become more sensitive to the emotions and energies around you. This is a blessing when it helps you read people and situations with uncanny accuracy, but it can feel like a curse when you want to be alone and untroubled by the problems of others. Confiding in someone close is the key. Your partner acts like they don't want to see you change, but once they realize the ship is leaving, they'll jump on. Bringing your emotions into words, even when words are inadequate, opens doors you didn't know existed, and when Sun and Mercury enter your sign later in the month, doing this comes naturally.

how to see # your aura

The aura can best be described as your spiritual signature. It is a manifestation of our conscious and subconscious activity and can be used to 'read' people's emotional and psychic states. We all have the ability to read auras; all that is required is to know how to use your psychic and physical senses. Once you have attuned yourself to be able to see and interpret an aura, it can be a useful tool through which to divine how people are feeling, both physically and emotionally, regardless of what they may be telling you.

Auras have been documented through history; they are not a new phenomenon. Advanced spiritual beings, such as Christ, Buddha and their immediate disciples are often portrayed as radiating golden light, incorporated into religions as halos. Today, scientists acknowledge the existence of electromagnetic, ultra-violet and infrared energy fields that are generated by living beings. Photographs of auras have confirmed what many have believed for a long time - that these energy fields change and fluctuate according to the physical, mental and spiritual state of the subject.

.....a 3D image

The key to reading auras is to use your vision in a different way. There are many books available, which offer optical illusions in which the reader has to look past the flat, two-dimensional image to reveal a three-dimensional picture that could not be seen initially. To achieve this, the eye must be in a relaxed state and relaxation is a vital factor in all aspects of an aura reading.

.....how to see your own aura

To see your own aura, you will need to sit or stand in front of a mirror about half a metre away. It is important to have a neutral colour behind you and to have created a lighting state that is subdued and ambient but not dim. Not only will this encourage relaxation, but it will also allow your eyes to work in a different way.

Whilst looking at yourself in the mirror, begin to sway gently from side to side. At the same time, try and look through your reflection to the wall behind, rather like the techniques used to see 'living eye' pictures. At all times you should be relaxed. Not only does this allow your optical muscles to loosen, but it will also engender a trance-like state in which your subconscious will become more alert and receptive. After a time, you should notice a shimmer surrounding the outline of your head. Initially, it may be difficult to discern colours, but this should come with time and practice.

.....opening the door

Once you are able to see the colours of your aura, you will have opened the door to a greater understanding of yourself and those around you. Typically, the main colours in an aura are yellows, reds, blues and greens. Yellow denotes a high level of mental activity and optimism. Reds are the colour of someone's psychic strength and will. While blue is the colour of calm and spiritual balance, darker shades can reveal depressive tendencies. Greens reveal someone's ability to sympathise and are a good measure of their ability to heal on a psychic level.

Once you are familiar with the patterns of your own aura, you will be able to read subconscious messages from your own psyche, giving you a greater understanding of your own spiritual and physical well being. Using these techniques on others will give you greater insight into how those around you are truly feeling.

Plot Your Spiritual Journey

Sooner or later, most of us feel uncertainty about where our life is going. Often this feels like standing at a crossroads, unsure which road to take. Maybe we perceive too many or too few options, or maybe we're aware that something is not right on a psychic level. By communicating with the subconscious mind, you can get an clear idea of where your spiritual life is lacking, and steer your spiritual journey in the direction that's right for you.

You Are Here...

In order to determine where you want to go, you must find out where you are and where you have been. Take the time to paint an accurate psychic portrait of yourself, as you are now. You can do this through visualisation: In the mental portrait, include everything you feel is lacking, or causing unhappiness and frustration. You may notice things that you had not previously considered, and it is worth keeping a note of all the feelings and images that come up. Through visualisations of this sort, you ask your psychic self for an appraisal of your emotional and spiritual health, to give you a clear idea of what needs to change.

What Led You Here?

Once you have created an accurate psychic depiction of yourself in the now, trace decisions in the past that led you to this situation. Choose an aspect of your situation that concerns you, and rewind your life, noting key moments that have been instrumental in creating that scenario. Track each thread, one at a time. By doing this, you instruct your subconscious to identify patterns of behaviour that create unhappiness and dissatisfaction. You'll remember how you felt during those times, and what caused you to make the decisions you did.

Mapping the Future

Finally, perform visualisations of where you want to be in the future. Picture yourself at your most confident, vivacious and happy. Create this image in detail, noting any differences between your current self and future self. It is now time to consider how to reach that point. As you consider what you want from your spiritual journey, and identify negative patterns, your subconscious responds by pointing out certain routes available to you. And as you identify things that are unimportant to your progression, you can discard them.

Responding to Positive Energy

Our physical lives are the corporeal manifestation of our psychic selves. Unhappiness on the psychic plane is mirrored in our relationships and decisions. Our psychic selves are fuelled by and respond to positive energy, so it is also worth identifying the positive qualities that make us who we are. These may be small things, such as being a good listener, but they represent psychic strengths and potentials. What may appear trivial in the physical realm is actually a fraction of the psychic gifts we can offer ourselves and those around us. When you consider your positive qualities, consider how they can be better incorporated into your life. Positive energy attracts positive energy, and by tapping into your psychic gifts, you can only enrich your life and the lives of those around you. Your chosen spiritual path is defined by the energies you send out and receive.

During your visualisations, you may experience unusually vivid dreams. These can offer valuable clues into the state of your psychic health. Dreams are the best method your subconscious has of communicating its concerns and desires, as there is no struggle with the conscious mind. Try keeping a dream journal and look for recurrent themes or images. The subconscious uses a mix of symbolism and literal images to convey its messages, and you should be able to find meaning with increasing clarity.

Our spiritual journeys are reflected in our physical lives, making it entirely possible to deduce what is at the heart of the matter and to take steps towards a positive resolution.

WHEN DID YOU FIRST REALISE YOU WERE PSYCHIC?

As a natural born psychic and medium, I have memories of spiritual experiences during childhood - but it all took a step back in my teens. I was in my late twenties when spirit stepped forward in my life again, and after many life changing experiences I was put back onto my spiritual path, and re-connected to my purpose.

HAVE YOU HAD ANY MEMORABLE EXPERIENCES READING FOR A CLIENT?

I feel once you make that special connection with a client, you make an instant link one another and spirit, ushering in many wonderful experiences for both client and reader. It's such a variable and personal experience, but the most exciting thing for me is to receive that extra special message or piece of information that makes the reading meaningful. The client truly carries that energy on with them.

WHAT MAKES A GOOD PSYCHIC READING?

A good and honest reading is given from the heart, on a love vibration; the reader makes a direct link between themselves, spirit, and the energy of the client. The work is done in a positive and supportive way, and the client is given special validations which lets them know you have truly connected. In the end, the client comes away feeling everything is in place, gaining clarity and a strong sense of direction.
